Item 4 – Advisory Business

Background

Worth Financial Group Inc. was founded and incorporated in the state of Texas in May 1983. Worth Financial Group is a member of the Financial Industry Regulator Authority (FINRA) and is also a member of the Securities Investors Protection Corporation (SIPC). Worth Financial Group is known as a “fully disclosed” originating broker-dealer, meaning it does not hold clients’ funds, does not clear clients’ trades on securities markets directly, and is not a member of any stock exchange. Instead, it forwards all trades to one of its clearing firms. Worth’s primary clearing agreements are maintained with Southwest Securities Inc. for retail brokerage accounts and National Financial Services for retail brokerage and advisory accounts. Certain advisory accounts are held at TD Ameritrade. Worth Financial Group is registered as a state regulated Registered Investment Adviser (“RIA”). As of July 1, 2012 Worth is registered as a RIA in Texas, California and Florida.

Principal Owners

Jim W. Clark is the principal owner of Worth.

Types of Advisory Services

Worth provides investment supervisory services, also known as asset management services and manages investment advisory accounts not involving investment supervisory services. On more than an occasional basis Worth furnishes advice to clients on matters not involving securities, such as financial planning matters, insurance issues, and trust services that often include estate planning. As of September 30, 2011, Worth manages approximately $21 million in assets. Approximately $21 million is managed on a discretionary basis, and none is managed on a non-discretionary basis. Services provided are financial planning, cash management, distribution planning, portfolio allocations, and reporting. Worth also provides supervisory services to its representatives and agents and management of investment portfolios. On a regular basis, Worth advises clients on insurance including term life, whole life, universal life, variable universal life, long term care, disability and annuities. Worth may recommend portfolio management to “outside” or “third-party” money managers. While all clients of Worth do benefit from our proprietary analysis and approach to investment management, each client does have the opportunity to impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities.

Jim Bell is an Investment Advisor Representative of Worth Financial Group doing business as Bell Strategic Investments. Jim Bell presents his views on the markets each week on his radio show which airs mainly in the Dallas and Houston Texas markets. Jim Bell invests primarily in Exchange Traded Funds and option strategies associated with those Exchange Traded Funds.

Worth permit clients to impose reasonable restrictions on the types of securities we purchase for their account, and permit clients to change the restrictions by written instruction to us.

Due to client restrictions and other differences regarding each account, performance of a client's account may be different from the performance of other accounts in the same model or strategy. On an ongoing basis, Worth or the Investment Advisor Representative reviews and adjusts the portfolios to ensure they continue to reflect the intended investment objectives, as well as any reasonable restrictions imposed by the client.

Item 5 – Fees and Compensation

Fees will be calculated as a percentage of the assets under management (as reported by the Custodian) on the last business day of each month. Advisory fees are deducted from the client account or billed to the client at the beginning of the following month. Clients may terminate the investment advisory contract at any time with thirty days written notice. Additionally, the client may terminate the Advisory Agreement within five days of signing the agreement.

Worth's advisory fee schedule for advisory clients of Jim Bell's is:

Month End Values	Annual Rate	Monthly Rate
$25,000 +	3.00 %	0.25 %

- Minimum account value to open a new account is $100,000, a household liquid net worth of at least $250,000 and investment objectives is growth and/or capital appreciation
- Fees are negotiable and Client may be able to obtain these advisory services elsewhere at lower cost. Fees other than stated above must be approved, in writing, by an Advisor principal
- All client accounts of Jim Bell are held at TD Ameritrade. Worth negotiated a discounted commission schedule with TD Ameritrade. All trades executed by Jim Bell are charged according to this schedule and are paid to TD Ameritrade. Worth does not receive any portion of these commissions, fees, and costs
- Worth advisory fees do not include other fees associated with the service of the account such as wire fees, electronic fund transfers, returned check fees, overnight fees, custodial fees, exchange fees or other charges required by TD Ameritrade or by law
- Worth, in its sole discretion, may waive its minimum fee and/or charge a lesser investment advisory fee based upon certain criteria (e.g., historical relationship, type of assets, anticipated future earning capacity, anticipated future additional assets, dollar amounts of assets to be managed, related accounts, account composition, negotiations with clients, etc.).
- Mutual Funds and Exchange Traded Funds also charge internal management fees, which are disclosed in a fund's prospectus.

- If sufficient cash is not available in the account to pay the fees when due, Worth will liquidate securities selected by Worth without prior notice to the client. If mutual funds are liquidated, the client may be charged a contingent deferred sales charge, an early redemption fee, or a fee to discourage short-term trading of fund shares. If the liquidated securities have declined in value, the client will realize a loss and forego the opportunity for future appreciation of the securities.
 - Clients can generally purchase the same or similar investment products or services through other firms that are not affiliated with us. However, clients who obtain investment products or services through other firms will not receive the benefit of the services we provide in determining which investment products or services may be appropriate in view of the client's financial situation, investment objectives, risk tolerance, and liquidity needs. Our fees may be higher (or lower) than fees charged by other advisers or institutions for similar services with better (or worse) performance or lower (or higher) risk. Clients should consider carefully all of the direct and indirect fees and expenses of our services and the investment products we recommend to fully understand the total costs and assess the value of our services.

As of June 2012 Jim Bell began offering a newsletter "Strategic Market Notes" via a subscription service. The subscription fee is $40/month. Jim Bell may waive the subscription fee to advisory clients at his discretion. Subscription fees are collected via PayPal and are paid directly to Jim Bell. A portion of the subscription fees may be shared by Worth Financial Group.

Worth does not charge for its financial planning services other than the schedules listed above. Worth reserves the right to stop work on any account that is more than 90 days overdue. In addition, Worth reserves the right to terminate any Registered Investment Advisory Agreement where a client has willfully concealed or has refused to provide pertinent information about financial situations when necessary and appropriate, in Worth's judgment, to providing proper financial advice.

Worth's President and Chief Investment Officer, Jim Clark, is dually registered as an Investment Advisor Representative and Broker-Dealer Representative of Worth Financial Group and is also appointed as an agent for various life insurance companies. Clients who wish to purchase fixed or variable insurance products or wish to invest in individual securities (including mutual funds, stocks, bonds, or other securities) outside of a fee based advisory account may choose to work through Mr. Clark for these types of transactions on a commission basis. Mr. Clark will receive separate, yet customary brokerage commissions, sales charges, insurance commissions, or other compensation for selling securities or other investment products. Clients are under no obligation to implement any recommendations Mr. Clark makes to buy or sell securities, insurance, or other investment products. If a client wishes, they may choose to implement any recommendations through other financial services firms not affiliated with Worth. To the extent Mr. Clark receives separate sales-related compensation from the sale of securities or investment products, Worth does not reduce or offset his advisory fees, salary or any consulting fees by the amount of such compensation. The potential of compensation may impair the objectivity of Mr. Clark and could influence him to make recommendations based on the additional sales compensation he will receive rather than the needs or best interests of the client. In order to address this conflict of interest, Worth has implemented the following procedures:

- We disclose the potential conflicts to our clients;
- We collect and maintain adequate information about our clients and accounts, including their financial circumstances, investment objectives, and risk tolerance, and we conduct regular account reviews to confirm portfolios are suitable;
- We periodically compare holdings and performance of all accounts with similar strategies to identify significant performance disparities indicative of unusual treatment;
- We educate our employees regarding our fiduciary responsibilities, regardless of fee arrangement.

Item 12 further describes the factors that Worth considers in selecting or recommending broker-dealers for client transactions and determining the reasonableness of their compensation (e.g., commissions).

Item 6 – Performance-Based Fees and Side-By-Side Management

Worth does not charge any performance-based fees (fees based on a share of capital gains on or capital appreciation of the assets of a client).

Item 7 – Types of Clients

Worth provides portfolio management services to individuals, high net worth individuals, corporate pension and profit-sharing plans, Taft-Hartley plans, charitable institutions, foundations, endowments, municipalities, registered mutual funds, private investment funds, trust programs, sovereign funds, foreign funds such as UCITs and SICAVs, and other U.S. and international institutions. For client of Jim Bell Worth requires a minimum account value of $100,000 to open and maintain an account value of at least $25,000. Worth may waive the account minimum or require a higher or lower minimum for an account, in its sole discretion. If the aggregate value of the client's account falls below the account minimum, Worth has the right to require deposit of additional amounts to bring the value of the account up to the account minimum or close and liquidate the account and send the proceeds to the client in accordance with the client's written delivery instructions.

Item 8 – Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis

Security analysis methods may include charting, fundamental analysis, technical analysis, and cyclical analysis. The main sources of information include in-house research, financial newspapers and magazines, inspections of corporate activities, research materials prepared by others, corporate rating services, timing services, annual reports, prospectuses, filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and company press releases. Our methods of analysis assume the accuracy of the information we analyze, such as ratings, financials, and research. While we are alert to indications that data may be incorrect, there is always a risk that our analysis may be compromised by inaccurate or misleading information.

Investment Strategies

The investment strategy for a specific client is based upon the objectives stated by the client during consultations. The client may change these objectives at any time. Each client executes Account Documents that state their objectives and their desired investment strategy.

Other strategies may include long-term purchases, short-term purchases, trading, short sales, margin transactions, and option writing (including covered options, uncovered options or spreading strategies).

Risk of Loss

All investment programs have certain risks that are borne by the investor. Investing in securities involves risk of loss that clients should be prepared to bear. Our investment approach constantly keeps the risk of loss in mind.

Investors face the following investment risks:

- Interest-rate risk: Fluctuations in interest rates may cause investment prices to fluctuate. For example, when interest rates rise, yields on existing bonds become less attractive, causing their market values to decline.
- Market Risk: The price of a security, bond, or mutual fund may drop in reaction to tangible and intangible events and conditions. This type of risk is caused by external factors independent of a security's particular underlying circumstances. For example, political, economic and social conditions may trigger market events.
- Inflation Risk: When any type of inflation is present, a dollar today will not buy as much as a dollar next year, because purchasing power is eroding at the rate of inflation.
- Currency Risk: Overseas investments are subject to fluctuations in the value of the United States dollar against the currency of the investment's originating country. This is also referred to as exchange rate risk.

- Reinvestment Risk: This is the risk that future proceeds from investments may have to be reinvested at a potentially lower rate of return (i.e. interest rate). This primarily relates to fixed income securities.
 - Business Risk: These risks are associated with a particular industry or a particular company within an industry. For example, oil-drilling companies depend on finding oil and then refining it, a lengthy process, before they can generate a profit. They carry a higher risk of profitability than an electric company, which generates its income from a steady stream of customers who buy electricity no matter what the economic environment is like.
 - Liquidity Risk: Liquidity is the ability to readily convert an investment into cash. Generally, assets are more liquid if many traders are interested in a standardized product. For example, Treasury Bills are highly liquid, while real estate properties are not.
 - Financial Risk: Excessive borrowing to finance a business' operations increases the risk of profitability, because the company must meet the terms of its obligations in good times and bad. During periods of financial stress, the inability to meet loan obligations may result in bankruptcy and/or a declining market value.
 - Insolvency of Brokers and Others: Clients will be subject to the risk of failure of the brokerage firms that execute their trades, the clearing firms that such brokers use, or the clearinghouses of which such clearing firms are members. Although we believe the institutions we recommend have sufficient capital, there is no assurance this will continue to be the case.
 - Trade Errors: On infrequent occasions, an error may be made in a client account. For example, a security may be erroneously purchased for a client account instead of sold. In these situations, if Worth was responsible for such error, Worth's policy is to restore or return the account to the position it would have been in had the trading error not occurred. Depending on the circumstances, various corrective steps may be taken, including but not limited to, canceling the trade, adjusting an allocation, or reimbursing the account.

Item 9 – Disciplinary Information

Registered investment advisers are required to disclose all material facts regarding any legal or disciplinary events that would be material to your evaluation of Worth or the integrity of Worth's management. Worth and its employees have not been involved in legal or disciplinary events related to past or present advisory clients.

Item 10 – Other Financial Industry Activities and Affiliations

Worth Financial Group is known as a “fully disclosed” originating broker-dealer, meaning it does not hold clients’ funds, does not clear clients’ trades on securities markets directly, and is not a member of any stock exchange. Instead, it forwards all trades to one of its clearing firms. Worth’s primary clearing agreements are maintained with Southwest Securities Inc. for retail brokerage accounts and National Financial Services for retail brokerage and advisory accounts. Certain advisory accounts are held at TD Ameritrade.

Worth is actively engaged as a Broker-Dealer and Insurance Agency. Worth sells securities products and insurance products on a commission basis.

Associates of Worth are also involved with insurance sales and may be a registered representative of Worth, a FINRA broker- dealer. For these services they receive compensation in addition to any advisory fees paid by the client. As such, a conflict of interest exists. Principals and associates will devote their time as needed between these functions, but the majority of their time is devoted to broker- dealer activities.

Item 11 – Code of Ethics

Worth has adopted a Code of Ethics for all supervised persons of the firm describing its high standard of business conduct, and fiduciary duty to its clients. The Code of Ethics includes provisions relating to the confidentiality of client information, a prohibition on insider trading, a prohibition of rumor mongering, restrictions on the acceptance of significant gifts and the reporting of certain gifts and business entertainment items, and personal securities trading procedures, among other things. All Investment Advisor Representatives of Worth must acknowledge the terms of the Code of Ethics annually, or as amended.

Worth anticipates that, in appropriate circumstances, consistent with clients’ investment objectives, it will cause accounts over which Worth has management authority to effect, and will recommend to investment advisory clients or prospective clients, the purchase or sale of securities in which Worth, its affiliates and/or clients, directly or indirectly, have a position of interest. Worth’s employees and persons associated with Worth are required to follow Worth’s Code of Ethics. Subject to satisfying this policy and applicable laws, officers, directors and employees of Worth and its affiliates may trade for their own accounts in securities which are recommended to and/or purchased for Worth’s clients. The Code of Ethics is designed to assure that the personal securities transactions, activities and interests of the employees of Worth will not interfere with (i) making decisions in the best interest of advisory clients and (ii) implementing such decisions while, at the same time, allowing employees to invest for their own accounts. Under the Code certain classes of securities have been designated as exempt transactions, based upon a determination that these would materially not interfere with the best interest of Worth’s clients. In addition, the Code requires pre-clearance of many transactions, and restricts trading in close proximity to client trading activity. Nonetheless, because the Code of Ethics in some circumstances would permit employees to invest in the same securities as clients, there is a possibility that employees might benefit from market activity by a client in a security held by an employee. Employee trading is continually monitored under the Code of Ethics, and to reasonably prevent conflicts of interest between Worth and its clients.

Certain affiliated accounts may trade in the same securities with client accounts on an aggregated basis when consistent with Worth's obligation of best execution. In such circumstances, the affiliated and client accounts will share commission costs equally and receive securities at a total average price. Worth will retain records of the trade order (specifying each participating account) and its allocation, which will be completed prior to the entry of the aggregated order. Completed orders will be allocated as specified in the initial trade order. Partially filled orders will be allocated on a pro rata basis. Any exceptions will be explained on the Order.

Worth's clients or prospective clients may request a copy of the firm's Code of Ethics by contacting Worth by telephone at (469) 916-4287 or by email to info@worthfinancialgroup.com.

Item 12 – Brokerage Practices

Selecting Brokerage Firms

Advisory accounts are opened at Worth's clearing firm, National Financial Services or at TD Ameritrade. Worth does not have a clearing agreement with TD Ameritrade. Worth recommends custodians based on financial strength, best execution of orders and reasonable commission rates. For accounts held at National Financial Services Worth, in its broker-dealer capacity may share a portion of the transaction fees. For accounts held at TD Ameritrade Worth does not receive any portion of the transaction fees.

Worth may combine or aggregate orders for multiple accounts with orders for other accounts for the purpose of "block trading." Block trading can enable the Advisor to obtain better prices and reduce overall transaction charges, executing trades in a timelier manner, and allocating transaction costs among all of the accounts included in the block. However, clients should be aware that due to the types of investments in various accounts, and differences in account objectives, cash positions, account types, and the systems Worth has available for placing orders with broker-dealers, block orders may be uncommon for some or all accounts. Accounts whose orders are not aggregated with other orders of other accounts will not receive the benefits of potentially lower transaction costs, timelier or better execution, or volume discounts that might be obtained by accounts whose orders are aggregated. Block orders will usually be executed through an "average price account" or similar account such that transactions for all accounts participating in the order will be averaged as to price and transaction costs, and the securities purchased or net proceeds received will be allocated pro rata among the accounts in proportion to their respective orders placed that trading day. Typically, partial fills will be allocated among accounts in proportion to the total orders participating in the block, unless Worth determines that another method of allocation is equitable (such as a rotation or other method). Such exceptions may occur due to varying cash availability across accounts, divergent investment objectives, existing concentrations, tax considerations, investment restrictions, performance relative to the applicable benchmark, performance relative to other accounts in the same Strategy, or desire to avoid “odd lots” (an amount of a security that is less than the normal unit of trading for that security).

Soft Dollar Agreements / Arrangements

Worth does not receive any compensation from Soft Dollar Agreements or Arrangements. Advisory clients will be advised on the different clearing firm options and the benefits of using either of the clearing firms. Clients may pay higher commissions based on the clearing firm chosen. Worth does not direct client accounts in return for product, research or services. The broker-dealer to be used is Worth Financial Group Inc. and certain advisory accounts are held by TD Ameritrade.

Item 13 – Review of Accounts

Client accounts are reviewed, at a minimum on a quarterly basis. Client transactions are reviewed on a daily basis by Jim Clark and Lisa Gesin, both supervisory principals of the firm. Mr. Clark and Mrs. Gesin are instructed to review and initial trading activity per the firm's written supervisory procedures. The review will be for accuracy, completeness and suitability. Additional reviews will be conducted if a principal suspects unauthorized or unsuitable trading activities.

Clients receive vendor and/or brokerage statements in any monthly period there is activity; at a minimum every quarter. Clients electing performance tracking and reporting will be provided Axxs/Advent reports at least quarterly. These reports include portfolio appraisal, performance, realized gains and losses and unrealized gains and losses. The clients may also receive financial and retirement planning reports.

Item 14 – Client Referrals and Other Compensation

Worth has been fortunate to receive many client referrals over the years. The referrals came from current clients, estate planning attorneys, accountants, employees, personal friends of employees and other similar sources. The firm may compensate referring professional parties for such referrals according to regulations.

Item 15 – Custody

All advisory accounts of Jim Bell are held at TD Ameritrade. Neither Worth nor its Investment Advisory Representatives have custody or possession of client's funds and/or securities. Neither Worth nor its Investment Advisory Representatives provides or performs depository services with respect to client's accounts. For our client accounts maintained in their custody, TD Ameritrade is generally compensated by our clients through commissions and other transaction-related or asset-based fees for securities trades that are executed through the custodian's accounts.

Clients should receive at least quarterly statements from the broker dealer, bank or other qualified custodian that holds and maintains client's investment assets. Worth urges clients to carefully review such statements and compare such official custodial records to the account statements that we may provide to you. Our statements may vary from custodial statements based on accounting procedures, reporting dates, or valuation methodologies of certain securities. Worth may also provide advisory clients with portfolio statements and performance reports provided by third-party vendors.

Confidentiality of Client Information

Protecting the confidentiality of its customers' nonpublic information is paramount for Worth. As such, Worth has instituted policies and procedures to ensure that nonpublic customer information is kept confidential. Worth does not disclose nonpublic personal information about its clients or former clients to any non-affiliated third parties, except as provided pursuant to its privacy policies or as required by or permitted by law. In the course of servicing a client's account, Worth may share client information with service providers, such as transfer agents, custodians, broker-dealers, accountants, and attorneys. Each has agreed to keep such information confidential.

Item 16 – Investment Discretion

Worth usually receives discretionary authority from the client at the outset of an advisory relationship to select the identity and amount of securities to be bought or sold. In all cases, however, such discretion is to be exercised in a manner consistent with the stated investment objectives for the particular client account.

When selecting securities and determining amounts, Worth observes the investment policies, limitations and restrictions of the clients for which it advises. For registered investment companies, Worth's authority to trade securities may also be limited by certain federal securities and tax laws that require diversification of investments and favor the holding of investments once made. Worth Investment Advisor Representative have the authority to determine, without obtaining specific client consent, the securities to be bought or sold, and the amount of the securities to be bought or sold.

Worth and its employees may buy or sell securities that are also held by advisory clients. Employees may not trade their own securities ahead of client trades. Employees comply with the provisions of Worth Financial Group's Written Supervisory Procedures.

Item 17 – Voting Client Securities

Neither Worth nor its Investment Advisor Representative vote proxies on securities. We require the client to retain responsibility for voting all account securities. Worth will not vote, exercise rights, make elections, or take other such actions with respect to securities held for accounts we manage. If desired, a client may instruct us in writing to forward to the client or a third party materials we receive pertaining to proxy solicitations or similar matters. Upon receipt of such written instructions, we will use reasonable efforts to forward such materials in a timely manner. In the absence of a written request, we will discard account proxy and related materials. Clients may obtain proxy materials directly by written request to the account's custodian.

Similarly, we do not advise or exercise rights, make elections, or take other actions with respect to legal proceedings involving companies whose securities are or were held in a client's account, such as asserting claims or voting in bankruptcy or reorganization proceedings, or filing "proofs of claim" in class action litigation. If desired, a client may instruct us in writing to forward to the client or a third party any materials we receive pertaining to such matters. Upon our receipt of such written instructions, we will use reasonable efforts to forward such materials in a timely manner. In the absence of a written request, we will discard such materials. Written instructions should be sent by mail to the address shown on the cover page of this Brochure. If a conflict of interest exists, it will be disclosed to the Client.

As a matter of firm policy and practice, Worth does not have any authority to and does not vote proxies on behalf of advisory clients. Clients retain the responsibility for receiving and voting proxies for any and all securities maintained in client portfolios. Worth may provide advice to clients regarding the clients' voting of proxies.

Item 18 – Financial Information

Worth has no financial commitment that impairs its ability to meet contractual and fiduciary commitments to clients, and has not been the subject of a bankruptcy proceeding. A balance sheet is not required to be provided because Worth does not serve as a custodian for client funds or securities, and does not require prepayment of fees of more than $600 per client, and six months or more, in advance. Worth has never been the subject of a bankruptcy petition.
